Intergenerational New Year Party

New Year Party, organised by WoW Mums for all three generations, was a very well attended fun evening.

The dignity of older people in their wider communities is key, if we are to achieve real cultural change.

Outdated attitudes and stereotypes to aging need to be challenged, and the barriers that prevent older people staying involved in society need to be removed.

Dignity champions from all backgrounds may wish to explore how intergenerational work may help in achieving this wider cultural change and in developing good and mutually supportive relationships between people from different generations and backgrounds. We know that when older and younger people come together in an intergenerational activity, participants often feel increased self-esteem, respect and experience improvements in their health or well-being. Join us in this crucial work.

WoW Parent Forum

This year we started our regular WoW Parent Forums with Emily Keenan, who wanted to consult parents on the new management and maintenance plans for the King George's park. We were also approached by Votes for Women

Group to discuss the preparations for the centenary of Women's right to vote, which Suffragettes won in 1918 for some women, after 50 years of tireless campaigning for women's right to vote. It took another ten years until women had the full right to vote, in 1928. Our speaker next month will be Mr. William Owen to consult with parents about organising the community engagement event for the Winstanley estate regeneration and to take part in the art installation on the two blocks on that estate.

Community Champion

Andrew with Worshipful Mayor of Wandsworth Cllr Lesley McDonnell

WoW Dad Andrew Beech has been selected by Wandsworth Housing department as a Wandsworth Community Champion for his irreplaceable work to help our imminent community thrive. Andrew has been volunteering as a skateboarding instructor for Christ Church school PTA and as a Fitness instructor for Women of Wandsworth, before he became a CEO of Buna Kazuku Karate School and started serving the local community as a sensei. Andrew initiated the only Karate Championship for youth in Battersea and Wandsworth where young people of all shapes and levels of fitness can have sparing fights in a safe environment to close the gap in service in our community. Andrew is a Chair of Pennethorne House Residents Association and has represented the views and rights of the tenants of that block in the crucial transitional period of the Winstanley estate regeneration.
