WoW at NHS QSRG

Women of Wandsworth have been invited to the NHS Quality Stakeholders Reference Group's meeting as an organization representing the views of parents and their children, to talk about South-West Division and Trust Quality update, as well as about Merton Family Start Easy Read Literature Project. Role of the QSRG is to update the community and patient representatives on the service offered, seek their views on any changes and to get updates from community groups and patient representatives. Central London Community Healthcare NHS Trust has a duty to review implementation of all elements of the quality strategy, as set out in the underpinning quality campaigns, such as Positive patient experience, Preventing harm, Effective Care and Modeling innovative models of care and in particular to discuss and ensure that plans are in place to make sure that the measures for success are achieved within appropriate time scale. Positive Patient Experience is central to each service work and involving service users, carers, volunteers and voluntary groups and their opinions are used to improve the quality of service provided.

Primrose is 99

Primrose Galiffant is our elderly friend who used to live in Haven Lodge in Battersea. Now she lives in Borovere care home, where she turned 99 years old and celebrated with a Bingo party and 99 red balloons. Primrose cared for other people all her life as a carer and it is wonderful that she can be taken care of now in her old age and just a year away from a Birthday card from the King.

Free Food Deliveries

WoW Mums have organised delivering free, fresh food and meat over the Easter holidays to elderly in John Kirk Lodge and in Hlommeigh Court in Battersea. This would not be possible to do without our regular philanthropic helpers such as Joe from A&P Foundation. We had a lot of potatoes and bread over the winter-months, but now fresh green vegetables, leeks, courgettes, aubergines, and lettuce are in our deliveries. We will continue to deliver free food to our elderly friends in our neighbourhood to help them have more money for their bills and medication.
